

Bidragstere i dette nummeret

Johan Fredrik Rye (dr.polit) er professor i sosiologi ved Institutt for sosiologi og statsvitenskap ved Norges teknisk-naturvitenskapelige universitet. Rye forsker på ulike former for mobilitet i de senmoderne samfunnene. De siste årene har han konsentrert seg om ulike aspekter knyttet til arbeidsinnvandringen fra de østeuropeiske landene. Epost: Johan.Fredrik.Rye@svt.ntnu.no

Anders Bakken er cand. sociol og jobber som forsker ved NOVA/Høgskolen i Oslo og Akershus. Hans forskningsinteresser er knyttet til ungdom og oppvekst, med fokus på sosiale forskjeller i skole og utdanning. Bakken er prosjektleder for Ungdata – lokale ungdomsundersøkelser. E-post: anders.bakken@nova.hioa.no.

Lihong Huang, PhD in international education, senior researcher at Youth Research Section at NOVA – Norwegian Social Research, Oslo and Akershus University College of Applied Sciences. Research interests: children and youth in schools, home background and educational achievement, learning experiences and peer relations, civic knowledge and political attitudes, classroom practices and teaching methods. E-mail: Lihong.Huang@nova.hioa.no

Ewa Krzaklewska, researcher at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków within projects Gender equality and quality of life (GEQ) and Transfam. Her scholarly interests revolve around youth and youth policy, gender and family, migration and mobility, as well as research methods. Her doctoral research examines the patterns of transitions to adulthood in Poland. E-mail: ewa.krzaklewska@uj.edu.pl

Paula Pustulka, researcher at the Transfam project at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków. She has recently earned a PhD in Sociology from Bangor University in the UK and her doctoral research was dedicated to Polish migrant mothers parenting in Germany and the United Kingdom. Paula's research interests pertain to intersections of gender, family, and migration, as well as qualitative research methods. E-mail: paulapustulka@gmail.com